In order to maintain a complete and healthy bite, each tooth is supposed to have an opposite tooth for structural support. Therefore, it is very important to fill any holes left by lost or missing teeth. Lacking a full compliment of teeth or opposing teeth in your bite, you may traumatize some of your remaining teeth. Anything less than a full compliment of teeth in a bite, you can wind up harming some of your existing teeth. Nevertheless, losing a few or the bulk of your teeth shouldn't result in a lack of confidence and should not lower your self-esteem as there are several options to help fashion you a brand new smile or to simply improve the smile you already possess!

The available treatment solutions start with small alterations or straightforward alterations to your existing dentures all the way up to a total transformation of your dentures like a complete replacement lavishing you with an amazing new smile. Your oral health care professional can provide you with all the necessary treatment options so you can better understand all of your denture possibilities.

Today's dentures do not have the same appearance as the older traditional dentures. New developments in oral health technologies and materials makes it possible for the oral health care professional to produce confident, natural, and organic looking smiles. High quality false teeth are built with multiple layers of acrylics and it is nearly impossible to differentiate them from real teeth.

Full Dentures - a complete denture is a detachable appliance that is recommended once a patient loses all of their natural teeth. Dental clinicians will take an exact measurement of the teeth at some stage in the initial denture treatment before selecting a fitting shape and shade of teeth that will be utilized to make a customized smile just for you.

Partials - a partial denture is a detachable implement that is supported by your original teeth. Partials could be needed for spaces missing one or more teeth. Quite a lot of alternatives are offered and many times a partial denture is chosen. Crowns or caps and bridges are other possibilities and may be favored by your oral health doctor, who is able to counsel you on the best treatment alternative for you.

These days, there is a wide selection of partials for you to choose from. Of these, the most exciting are the invisible removable partial dentures, which present a partial denture that is virtually invisible, able to blend in with your already existing teeth and your gum tissues. The invisible partial is flexible, and nearly indestructible and uses only the highest quality materials available to ensure stability and resistance to extreme wear and tear.
